MEMORANDUM OF LAW

I. INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

Plaintiff Deckers Outdoor Corporation (“Deckers”) is requesting temporary ex parte relief based on an action for trademark infringement, counterfeiting, and false designation of origin against the defendants identified on Schedule “A” to the Complaint (collectively, the “Defendants”). As alleged in Deckers’ Complaint, Defendants are promoting, advertising, marketing, distributing, offering for sale, and/or selling products, including boots and running shoes, using infringing and counterfeit versions of Deckers’ federally registered HOKA and UGG trademarks (the “Counterfeit Deckers Products”) through at least the fully interactive, e-commerce stores¹ operating under the Seller Aliases identified in Schedule A to the Complaint (the “Seller Aliases”).

Defendants run a sophisticated counterfeiting operation and have targeted sales to Illinois residents by setting up and operating e-commerce stores using one or more Seller Aliases through which Illinois residents can purchase Counterfeit Deckers Products. The e-commerce stores operating under the Seller Aliases share unique identifiers establishing a logical relationship between them. Further, Defendants attempt to avoid and mitigate liability by operating under one or more Seller Aliases to conceal both their identities and the full scope and interworking of their operation. Deckers is forced to file this action to combat Defendants’ counterfeiting of its registered trademarks, as well as to protect unknowing consumers from purchasing Counterfeit Deckers Products over the Internet. Defendants’ ongoing unlawful activities should be restrained, and Deckers respectfully requests that this Court issue ex parte a Temporary Restraining Order.

II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

A. Deckers' Trademarks and Products

Deckers is well-known throughout the United States and elsewhere as a source of high quality footwear products, including the famous UGG brand of premium sheepskin footwear (the “UGG Products”). Declaration of Lisa Bereda (the “Bereda Declaration”) at ¶ 3. UGG Products are distributed and sold to consumers through retailers throughout the United States, including over 100 authorized retailers in Illinois, the ugg.com website and UGG Concept Stores. Id. Since acquiring the UGG trademarks and the goodwill of the business in 1995, Deckers has continuously sold footwear and clothing under the UGG trademarks and stylized variations and logos (collectively, the “UGG Trademarks”). Id. at ¶ 4. Deckers has built substantial goodwill in the UGG Trademarks. Id. The UGG Trademarks are famous and valuable assets of Deckers. Id. The widespread fame of the UGG brand for footwear has allowed Deckers to successfully extend the brand into clothing and other accessories. Id. at ¶ 19.

Deckers is also well-known throughout the United States and elsewhere as a source of high quality footwear and apparel products, including the well-known Hoka brand of premium running shoes and apparel (the “Hoka Products”). Id. at ¶ 5. Hoka Products are distributed and sold to consumers through retailers throughout the United States, including over 39 authorized retailers in Illinois, and through the hokaoneone.com website. Id. The Hoka brand is an authentic, premium line of year-round performance footwear and apparel that offers enhanced cushioning and inherent stability with minimal weight. Id. at ¶ 6. While originally designed for ultra-runners, the Hoka brand appeals to athletes around the world, regardless of activity. Id. Hoka Products typically include at least one of the federally registered Hoka trademarks. Deckers uses its Hoka trademarks (the “HOKA Trademarks”) in connection with the marketing of its Hoka Products. Id.

Deckers holds registrations for its UGG Trademarks and HOKA Trademarks (the “DECKERS Trademarks”) in more than 100 countries around the world. Id. at ¶ 7. True and correct copies of Deckers’ United States trademark registrations are attached to the Bereda Declaration as Exhibit 1. The U.S. registrations for the DECKERS Trademarks are valid, subsisting, in full force and effect, and some are incontestable pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 1065. Id. at ¶ 8. The registrations for the DECKERS Trademarks constitute prima facie evidence of their validity and of Deckers’ exclusive right to use the DECKERS Trademarks pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 1057(b).

B. Defendants’ Unlawful Activities

The success of the HOKA and UGG brands (the “Deckers Brands”) has resulted in their significant counterfeiting. Id. at ¶ 22. Consequently, Deckers has a worldwide anti-counterfeiting program and regularly investigates suspicious e-commerce stores identified in proactive Internet sweeps and reported by consumers. Id. In recent years, Deckers has identified numerous fully interactive e-commerce stores, including those operating under the Seller Aliases, which were offering for sale and/or selling Counterfeit Deckers Products to consumers in this Judicial District and throughout the United States. Id.

Deckers’ well-pleaded allegations regarding registration patterns, similarities among the e-commerce stores operating under the Seller Aliases and the Counterfeit Deckers Products for sale thereon, and common tactics employed to evade enforcement efforts establish a logical relationship among the Defendants and that Defendants are interrelated. If Defendants provide additional credible information regarding their identities, Deckers will take appropriate steps to amend the Complaint.

III. ARGUMENT

Defendants' purposeful, intentional, and unlawful conduct is causing and will continue to cause irreparable harm to Deckers' reputation and the goodwill symbolized by the DECKERS Trademarks. Rule 65(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provides that the Court may issue an ex parte TRO where immediate and irreparable injury, loss, or damage will result to the applicant before the adverse party or that party's attorney can be heard in opposition. Fed. R. Civ. P. 65(b). The entry of a TRO is appropriate because it would immediately stop the Defendants from benefiting from their wrongful use of the DECKERS Trademarks and preserve the status quo until a hearing can be held.

In the absence of a TRO without notice, the Defendants can and likely will register new e-commerce stores under new aliases and move any assets to offshore bank accounts outside the jurisdiction of this Court. See Declaration of Justin R. Gaudio (the "Gaudio Declaration") at ¶¶ 5-11. Courts have recognized that civil actions against counterfeiters present special challenges that justify proceeding on an ex parte basis. See Columbia Pictures Indus., Inc. v. Jasso, 927 F. Supp. 1075, 1077 (N.D. Ill. 1996) (observing that "proceedings against those who deliberately traffic in infringing merchandise are often useless if notice is given to the infringers"). As such, Deckers respectfully requests that this Court issue the requested ex parte TRO.

This Court has original subject matter jurisdiction over the claims in this action pursuant to the provisions of the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1051, et seq., 28 U.S.C. §§ 1338(a)-(b), and 28 U.S.C. § 1331. Venue is proper pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391.

This Court may properly exercise personal jurisdiction over Defendants since Defendants directly target business activities toward consumers in the United States, including Illinois, through at least the fully interactive, e-commerce stores operating under the Seller Aliases. Specifically, Defendants have targeted sales to Illinois residents by setting up and operating e-commerce stores that target United States consumers using one or more Seller Aliases, offer shipping to the United States, including Illinois, accept payment in U.S. dollars and, on information and belief, have sold Counterfeit Deckers Products to residents of Illinois. See Complaint at ¶¶ 2, 18, and 26–27. See, e.g., Christian Dior Couture, S.A. v. Lei Liu et al., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 158225, at *6 (N.D. Ill. Nov. 17, 2015) (personal jurisdiction proper over defendants offering to sell alleged infringing product to United States residents, including Illinois; no actual sale required).

Each of the Defendants is committing tortious acts in Illinois, is engaging in interstate commerce, and has wrongfully caused Deckers substantial injury in the State of Illinois.

A. Standard for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction

District Courts within this Circuit hold that the standard for granting a TRO and the standard for granting a preliminary injunction are identical. See, e.g. Charter Nat’l Bank & Trust v. Charter One Fin., Inc., 2001 WL 527404, at *1 (N.D. Ill. May 15, 2001) (citation omitted). A party seeking to obtain a preliminary injunction must demonstrate: (1) that its case has some likelihood of success on the merits; (2) that no adequate remedy at law exists; and (3) that it will suffer irreparable harm if the injunction is not granted. See Ty, Inc. v. The Jones Group, Inc., 237 F.3d 891, 895 (7th Cir. 2001).

If the Court is satisfied that these three conditions have been met, then it must consider the harm that the nonmoving party will suffer if preliminary relief is granted, balancing such harm against the irreparable harm the moving party will suffer if relief is denied. Id. Finally, the Court must consider the potential effect on the public interest (non-parties) in denying or granting the injunction. Id. The Court then weighs all of these factors, “sitting as would a chancellor in equity,” when it decides whether to grant the injunction. Id. (quoting Abbott Labs. v. Mead Johnson & Co., 971 F.2d 6, 11 (7th Cir. 1992)). This process involves engaging in what the Court has deemed “the sliding scale approach” – the more likely the plaintiff will succeed on the merits, the less the balance of harms need favor the plaintiff’s position. Id.

B. Deckers Will Likely Succeed on the Merits

A defendant is liable for trademark infringement and counterfeiting under the Lanham Act if it, “without the consent of the registrant, use[s] in commerce, any reproduction, copy, or colorable imitation of a registered mark in connection with the sale, offering for sale, distribution, or advertising of any goods ... which such use is likely to cause confusion, or to cause mistake, or to deceive.” 15 U.S.C. § 1114(1). A Lanham Act trademark infringement claim has two elements. See 15 U.S.C. § 1125(a). First, a plaintiff must show “that its mark is protected under the Lanham Act.” Barbecue Marx, Inc. v. 551 Ogden, Inc., 235 F.3d 1041, 1043 (7th Cir. 2000). Second, a plaintiff must show that the challenged mark is likely to cause confusion among consumers. Id.

In this case, Deckers’ DECKERS Trademarks are registered with the United States Patent and Trademark Office and have been used continuously for many years, some since as early as 1979 by Deckers and its predecessors in interest. Bereda Declaration at ¶¶ 8, 9. The registrations for the DECKERS Trademarks constitute prima facie evidence of their validity and of Deckers’ exclusive right to use the DECKERS Trademarks pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 1057(b). Furthermore, Deckers has not licensed or authorized Defendants to use its DECKERS Trademarks, and none of the Defendants are authorized retailers of genuine Deckers Products. Id. at ¶ 25. Thus, Deckers satisfies the first element of its Lanham Act claim.

The Seventh Circuit has held that where “one produces counterfeit goods in an apparent attempt to capitalize upon the popularity of, and demand for, another’s product, there is a presumption of a likelihood of confusion.” Microsoft Corp. v. Rechanik, 249 F. App’x 476, 479 (7th Cir. 2007). Accordingly, the Court can presume a likelihood of confusion from Defendants’ use of the DECKERS Trademarks. The result is the same when considered in light of the Seventh Circuit's seven enumerated factors to determine whether there is a likelihood of confusion, which include: (1) similarity between the marks in appearance and suggestion; (2) similarity of the products/services; (3) area and manner of concurrent use; (4) degree of care likely to be exercised by consumers; (5) strength of complainant's mark; (6) actual confusion; and, (7) intent of the defendants to palm off their products as that of another. AutoZone, Inc. v. Strick, 543 F.3d 923, 929 (7th Cir. 2008). No one factor is dispositive, but the similarity of the marks, actual confusion, and the defendant's intent are "particularly important." Id.

Deckers has submitted extensive documentation showing that Defendants are selling Counterfeit Deckers Products that look similar to Deckers' genuine Deckers Products and are using infringing and counterfeit marks identical to the DECKERS Trademarks. Both Deckers and Defendants advertise and sell their products to consumers via the Internet, targeting consumers searching for genuine Deckers Products. Bereda Declaration at ¶¶ 5, 17, 26. Those consumers are diverse with varying degrees of sophistication, and they are likely to have difficulty distinguishing genuine Deckers Products from Counterfeit Deckers Products. Indeed, it appears that Defendants are intentionally trying to induce consumers looking for genuine Deckers Products to purchase Counterfeit Deckers Products instead. In that regard, Defendants advertise Counterfeit Deckers Products under the DECKERS Trademarks. Evidence of actual consumer confusion is not required to prove that a likelihood of confusion exists, particularly given the compelling evidence that Defendants are attempting to "palm off" their goods as genuine Deckers Products. CAE, Inc. v. Clean Air Eng'g, Inc., 267 F.3d 660, 685 (7th Cir. 2001). Accordingly, Deckers is likely to establish a prima facie case of trademark infringement, counterfeiting, and false designation of origin.

C. There Is No Adequate Remedy at Law, and Deckers Will Suffer Irreparable Harm in the Absence of Preliminary Relief

The Seventh Circuit has “clearly and repeatedly held that damage to a trademark holder’s goodwill can constitute irreparable injury for which the trademark owner has no adequate legal remedy.” Re/Max N. Cent., Inc. v. Cook, 272 F.3d 424, 432 (7th Cir. 2001) (citing Eli Lilly & Co. v. Natural Answers, Inc., 233 F.3d 456, 469 (7th Cir. 2000)). Irreparable injury “almost inevitably follows” when there is a high probability of confusion because such injury “may not be fully compensable in damages.” Helene Curtis Industries, Inc. v. Church & Dwight Co., Inc., 560 F.2d 1325, 1332 (7th Cir. 1977) (citation omitted). “The most corrosive and irreparable harm attributable to trademark infringement is the inability of the victim to control the nature and quality of the defendants’ goods.” Int’l Kennel Club of Chicago, Inc. v. Mighty Star, Inc., 846 F.2d 1079, 1092 (7th Cir. 1988). As such, monetary damages are likely to be inadequate compensation for such harm. Ideal Indus., Inc. v. Gardner Bender, Inc., 612 F.2d 1018, 1026 (7th Cir. 1979).

Defendants’ unauthorized use of the DECKERS Trademarks has and continues to irreparably harm Deckers through diminished goodwill and brand confidence, damage to Deckers’ reputation, loss of exclusivity, and loss of future sales. Bereda Declaration at ¶¶ 33-37. The extent of the harm to Deckers’ reputation and goodwill and the possible diversion of customers due to loss in brand confidence are both irreparable and incalculable, thus warranting an immediate halt to Defendants’ infringing activities through injunctive relief. See Promatek Industries, Ltd. v. Equitrac Corp., 300 F.3d 808, 813 (7th Cir. 2002) (finding that damage to plaintiff’s goodwill was irreparable harm for which plaintiff had no adequate remedy at law). Deckers will suffer immediate and irreparable injury, loss, or damage if an ex parte Temporary Restraining Order is not issued in accordance with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 65(b)(1). Bereda Declaration at ¶ 38.

D. The Balancing of Harms Tips in Deckers' Favor, and the Public Interest Is Served by Entry of the Injunction

As noted above, if the Court is satisfied that Deckers has demonstrated (1) a likelihood of success on the merits, (2) no adequate remedy at law, and (3) the threat of irreparable harm if preliminary relief is not granted, then it must next consider the harm that Defendants will suffer if preliminary relief is granted, balancing such harm against the irreparable harm Deckers will suffer if relief is denied. Ty, Inc., 237 F.3d at 895. As willful infringers, Defendants are entitled to little equitable consideration. “When considering the balance of hardships between the parties in infringement cases, courts generally favor the trademark owner.” Krause Int’l Inc. v. Reed Elsevier, Inc., 866 F. Supp. 585, 587-88 (D.D.C. 1994). This is because “[o]ne who adopts the mark of another for similar goods acts at his own peril since he has no claim to the profits or advantages thereby derived.” Burger King Corp. v. Majeed, 805 F. Supp. 994, 1006 (S.D. Fla. 1992) (internal quotation marks omitted). Therefore, the balance of harms “cannot favor a defendant whose injury results from the knowing infringement of the plaintiff’s trademark.” Malarkey-Taylor Assocs., Inc. v. Cellular Telecomms. Indus. Ass’n, 929 F. Supp. 473, 478 (D.D.C. 1996).

As Deckers has demonstrated, Defendants have been profiting from the sale of Counterfeit Deckers Products. Thus, the balance of equities tips decisively in Deckers’ favor. The public is currently under the false impression that Defendants are operating their e-commerce stores with Deckers’ approval and endorsement. In this case, the injury to the public is significant, and the injunctive relief that Deckers seeks is specifically intended to remedy that injury by dispelling the public confusion created by Defendants' actions. As such, equity requires that Defendants be ordered to cease their unlawful conduct.

IV. THE EQUITABLE RELIEF SOUGHT IS APPROPRIATE

The Lanham Act authorizes courts to issue injunctive relief "according to the principles of equity and upon such terms as the court may deem reasonable, to prevent the violation of any right of the registrant of a mark" 15 U.S.C. § 1116(a).

A. A Temporary Restraining Order Immediately Enjoining Defendants' Unauthorized and Unlawful Use of the DECKERS Trademarks Is Appropriate

Deckers requests a temporary injunction requiring the Defendants to immediately cease all use of the DECKERS Trademarks, or substantially similar marks, on or in connection with all e-commerce stores operating under the Seller Aliases. Such relief is necessary to stop the ongoing harm to Deckers' DECKERS Trademarks and associated goodwill, as well as harm to consumers, and to prevent the Defendants from continuing to benefit from their unauthorized use of the DECKERS Trademarks. The need for ex parte relief is magnified in today's global economy where counterfeiters can operate anonymously over the Internet. Deckers is currently unaware of both the true identities and locations of the Defendants, as well as other e-commerce stores used to distribute, sell and offer to sell Counterfeit Deckers Products. Many courts have authorized immediate injunctive relief in similar cases involving the unauthorized use of trademarks and counterfeiting. See, e.g., Deckers Outdoor Corporation v. The Partnerships, et al., No. 15-cv-3249 (N.D. Ill. Apr. 4, 2015) (unpublished) (Order granting Ex Parte Motion for Temporary Restraining Order).

B. Transferring the Domain Names to Deckers' Control Is Appropriate

As part of the Temporary Restraining Order, Deckers also seeks temporary transfer of the Domain Names to Deckers' control in order to disable the counterfeit websites and electronically publish notice of this case to Defendants. Defendants involved in domain name litigation easily can, and often will, change the ownership of a domain name or continue operating the website while the case is pending. Accordingly, to preserve the status quo and ensure the possibility of eventual effective relief, courts in trademark cases involving domain names regularly grant the relief requested herein. See, e.g., Deckers Outdoor Corporation v. The Partnerships, et al., No. 15-cv-3249 (N.D. Ill. April 4, 2015) (unpublished). As such, Deckers respectfully requests that, as part of the TRO, the Court require the relevant registries and/or registrars for the Domain Names to transfer the Domain Names to Deckers.

C. Preventing the Fraudulent Transfer of Assets Is Appropriate

Deckers requests an ex parte restraint of Defendants' assets so that Deckers' right to an equitable accounting of Defendants' profits from sales of Counterfeit Deckers Products is not impaired.² Issuing an ex parte restraint will ensure Defendants' compliance. If such a restraint is not granted in this case, Defendants may disregard their responsibilities and fraudulently transfer financial assets to overseas accounts before a restraint is ordered. Specifically, on information and belief, the Defendants in this case hold most of their assets in off-shore accounts, making it easy to hide or dispose of assets, which will render an accounting by Deckers meaningless.

Courts have the inherent authority to issue a prejudgment asset restraint when plaintiff's complaint seeks relief in equity. Animale Grp. Inc. v. Sunny's Perfume Inc., 256 F. App'x 707, 709 (5th Cir. 2007). In addition, Deckers has shown a strong likelihood of succeeding on the merits of its trademark infringement and counterfeiting claim, so according to the Lanham Act 15 U.S.C. § 1117(a)(1), Deckers is entitled, "subject to the principles of equity, to recover ... defendant's profits." Deckers' Complaint seeks, among other relief, that Defendants account for and pay to Deckers all profits realized by Defendants by reason of Defendants' unlawful acts. Therefore, this Court has the inherent equitable authority to grant Deckers' request for a prejudgment asset freeze to preserve relief sought by Deckers.

The Northern District of Illinois in Lorillard Tobacco Co. v. Montrose Wholesale Candies entered an asset restraining order in a trademark infringement case brought by a tobacco company against owners of a store selling counterfeit cigarettes. Lorillard Tobacco Co. v. Montrose Wholesale Candies, 2005 WL 3115892, at *13 (N.D. Ill. Nov. 8, 2005). The Court recognized that it was explicitly allowed to issue a restraint on assets for lawsuits seeking equitable relief. Id. (citing Grupo Mexicano, de Desarrollo, S.A. v. Aliance Bond Fund, 527 U.S. 308, 325 (1999)). Because the tobacco company sought a disgorgement of the storeowner's profits, an equitable remedy, the Court found that it had the authority to freeze the storeowner's assets. Id.

Deckers has shown a likelihood of success on the merits, an immediate and irreparable harm suffered as a result of Defendants' activities, and that, unless Defendants' assets are frozen, Defendants will likely hide or move their ill-gotten funds to off-shore bank accounts. Accordingly, an asset restraint is proper.

D. Deckers Is Entitled to Expedited Discovery

The United States Supreme Court has held that "federal courts have the power to order, at their discretion, the discovery of facts necessary to ascertain their competency to entertain the merits." Vance v. Rumsfeld, No. 1:06-cv-06964, 2007 WL 4557812, at *6 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 21, 2007) (quoting Oppenheimer Fund, Inc. v. Sanders, 437 U.S. 340, 351, 98 S.Ct 2380 (1978)). Courts have wide latitude in determining whether to grant a party's request for discovery. Id. (citation omitted). Furthermore, courts have broad power over discovery and may permit discovery in order to aid in the identification of unknown defendants. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(2).

Deckers respectfully requests expedited discovery to discover bank and payment system accounts Defendants use for their counterfeit sales operations. The expedited discovery requested in Deckers' Proposed TRO is limited to include only what is essential to prevent further irreparable harm. Discovery of these financial accounts so that they can be frozen is necessary to ensure that these activities will be contained. See, e.g., Deckers Outdoor Corporation v. The Partnerships, et al., No. 15-cv-3249 (N.D. Ill. April 4, 2015) (unpublished). Deckers' seizure and asset restraint may have little meaningful effect without the requested relief. Accordingly, Deckers respectfully requests that expedited discovery be granted.

V. A BOND SHOULD SECURE THE INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

The posting of security upon issuance of a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction is vested in the Court's sound discretion. Rathmann Grp. v. Tanenbaum, 889 F.2d 787, 789 (8th Cir. 1989). Because of the strong and unequivocal nature of Deckers' evidence of counterfeiting, infringement, and false designation of origin, Deckers respectfully requests that this Court require Deckers to post a bond of no more than ten thousand U.S. dollars ($10,000.00). See, e.g., Deckers Outdoor Corporation v. The Partnerships, et al., No. 15-cv-3249 (N.D. Ill. April 4, 2015) (unpublished) ($10,000 bond).

VI. CONCLUSION

Defendants' counterfeiting operations are irreparably harming Deckers' business, its famous Deckers Brands, and consumers. Without entry of the requested relief, Defendants' sale of Counterfeit Deckers Products will continue to lead prospective purchasers and others to believe that Defendants' Counterfeit Deckers Products have been manufactured by or emanate from Deckers, when in fact, they have not. Therefore, entry of an ex parte order is necessary. In view of the foregoing and consistent with previous similar cases, Deckers respectfully requests that this Court enter a Temporary Restraining Order in the form submitted herewith.

Dated this 4th day of December 2020.
